Excerpt: . . . make the agreement null and void. From time to time I tried to induce the board to comply with my conditions. Q. Did you ever intend to give the board, or give Beaverhead county, a right of way, unless such board accepted the conditions and fulfilled them A. No, sir. They accepted them, too, on the day they met. I was there when they met. They said they accepted my conditions. The board was in session at the time they accepted my conditions. They were meeting in the board room. After the road reached the line of the Reynolds ranch, the board stopped work on it; they would not do anything further. I asked them why they would not put it through. They said they could not because the conditions would not permit them to do it. That is the time that I served that notice that is now in evidence in this case. It appears from other evidence that the work was stopped because the board was of the opinion that the expense of construction was too great. What change, if any, was made does not appear, but there is ground for the inference that the plaintiff can conveniently reach Dillon by traveling another road deviating somewhat from the line of the proposed road after it leaves his lands. About September 28, 1909, the plaintiff notified the board in writing that, unless the new road should be established and the old road closed...
